There was an allegation made yesterday that the photos Ann showed the council yesterday were not recent. This is untrue as those were taken last week. Furthermore, the below photos were taken TODAY which shows the flooding and state of the property. Thank you. Maura

Bail granted to woman who breached checkpoints

By Eliot Kleinberg
Daily News Staff Writer

The Connecticut woman accused of charging a barrier at Mar-a-Lago in January, prompting the Secret Service and Palm Beach County sheriff's officers to fire at her, is finally expected to leave jail after five months.

A judge this week agreed to bail for Hannah Roemhild, the now-31-year-old opera singer charged in the Jan. 31 incident outside President Donald J. Trump's "Winter White House."

The Palm Beach County Circuit Court's online docket was down Wednesday and the amount of bond was not available. Roemhild still was jailed as of Wednesday afternoon.

Circuit Judge Joseph

Man's ruling followed the submission by Roemhild's lawyers of letters of character reference from people in her hometown of Deep River, Connecticut.

They were from the chief elected officer of the town, a veteran police officer, a nurse practitioner who has treated Roemhild's mental illnesses, the music director of a church choir of which Roemhild's paid section leader, Roemhild's former family Episcopal priest, a retired U.S. Navy officer who is Roemhild's aunt, and Roemhild's brother, a veteran Navy SEAL now in the Middle East.

"I'm not asking that we excuse her behavior in West Palm," brother Andrew Roemhild wrote. "What I am asking for is understanding that she did not intentionally pick West Palm Beach because of the president, and she was not thinking clearly when she evaded the police in the car chase that ensued."

Roemhild faces two counts of aggravated assault on a law-enforcement officer and one count each of fleeing at high speed and resisting an officer without violence. She is expected to face federal charges as well, although nothing had appeared in U.S. District Court dockets as of Wednesday afternoon.

Roemhild's lawyers have said she will plead not guilty by reason of insanity.

Lawyers have been trying to get her out of jail and into "a facility where her significant mental-health issues can be better addressed," according to court documents.

The lawyers said Roemhild has a history of mental-health issues and was off her medications when an off-duty Florida Highway Patrol trooper on private detail at The Breakers hotel saw her dancing on the hood of her rented Jeep SUV.

Reports said she jumped into the SUV and drove off, leading the trooper on a chase that led to two security checkpoints about 2½ miles to the south, near Mar-a-Lago. There, she was stopped by two U.S. Secret Service agents fired at her. No one was injured.

Roemhild then sped across the Southern Boulevard bridge, and picked up her mother at Palm Beach International Airport. She was tracked to a nearby hotel where she was arrested, PBSO has said.

RECORD

The sale beats the previous $50 million price record for Palm Beach lakefront properties without ocean frontage. That record was set in January 2006 when billionaire philanthropist and financier Henry R. Kravis bought his landmark house at 700 N. Lake Way.

This is the second Palm Beach sale this month to hit $70 million, according to Palm Beach County Courthouse records. On June 18, the beachfront estate that once belonged to the Kennedy family sold for $70 million at 1095 N. Ocean Blvd.

Completed in 1938 and designed by noted society architect John L. Volk, the six-bedroom, neo-classical style house on South Lake Trail won the Preservation Foundation of Palm Beach's 1997 Robert I. Ballinger Award for a historically sensitive renovation. The two-story house has had landmark protection for 20 years.

On El Vedado Road

It appears the Turners are the new owners of a six-bedroom house at 220 El Vedado Road, according to this week's deed and town records. The local multiple listing service shows a sale on that property closed Monday at $21 million. But no deed had been recorded for the transaction as of Wednesday afternoon, so it's not known if the courthouse price will match the one in the MLS.

The property on El Vedado Road had been under contract since late April with a price tag of $25.5 million, MLS shows. That house was home for more than 20 years to the Dixon family, and property records show it was most recently owned by a trust associated with Edith Robb Dixon and others. Edith Dixon shared the property with her late husband, educator and philanthropist F. "Fitz" Eugene Dixon Jr., who died in 2006.

A courthouse filing suggests that Robb E. and Lydia Turner just bought this red-brick home at 220 El Vedado Road. The local multiple listing service Monday reported the house sold for $21 million. The Turners, in turn, have parted with their lakeside house across town for $71.85 million, the price recorded with the deed.

Built in 1999 with 15,038 total square feet, the El Vedado Road house stands on a lot measuring more than 1 1/2 acres about a half-mile south of Worth Avenue in the lake block of the street. The home has generously scaled rooms, elaborate millwork, a full-house generator and impact-resistant windows, according to its sales listing.

Any agents involved?

The Palm Beach Daily News was unable to confirm if any real estate agents or agencies were involved in the sale of the house on South Lake Trail.

The MLS shows agent Christopher Deitz of William Raveis South Florida was on the buyer's side of the sale on El Vedado Road opposite Brown Harris Stevens agent John O. Pickett III. Deitz couldn't be reached and Pickett declined to comment.

In the 2017 sale of 8 S. Lake Trail, Deitz represented the Turners, who bought the property through an ownership company. Deitz was then at the agency known as The Fite Group, which today is William Raveis South Florida. Deitz's colleague at the same agency, agent Toni Hollis, represented the sellers three years ago.

Robb Turner's career has focused for 27 years on energy and corporate finance as well as public and private equity investment, according to a brief online biographical sketch. He is chairman of The Madava Group, a Houston-based holding company he founded with interests in energy-fund management and energy financial services. Turner was previously senior partner at ArcLight Capital Partners, a private equity firm he co-founded.

The Turners also founded Madava Farms in Dover Plains, New York, one of the country's largest producers of maple syrup.

The house the Turners sold features signatures of Georgian Revival-style homes designed by Volk, including generously sized rooms with well-proportioned ceiling heights. Volk gave the living and dining

Seasonal fertilizer ban takes effect Monday

By Adriana Delgado
Daily News Staff Writer

Town officials are reminding residents of an ordinance that limits the use of fertilizers in landscaping.

A press release sent by the town last week cites the June 2019 ordinance banning the use of fertilizers containing phosphorous and nitrogen during the rainy season months. The ban, which runs Monday to Sept. 30, does not apply to golf courses.

The ordinance, a move to limit the amount of chemicals entering local waterways, was unanimously approved by the council and took effect on June 11 last year, the day it was unanimously adopted.

Toxic blue-green algal blooms the past few summers has been a cause for concern in both Palm Beach County and the Town of Palm Beach. Council member Bobbie Lindsay said elements such as nitrogen and phosphorous are nutrients that occur naturally in aquatic ecosystems. But when rain washes too much of those nutrients into canals, rivers and lagoons, it can cause a devastating effect on aquatic life.

The problem is that large quantities of nitrogen and phosphorus in the water produces an explosion of algal growth, which decreases the oxygen that fish and other aquatic life need to survive, Lindsay said. This leads to illnesses and large-scale fish kills, with some algal blooms producing elevated toxins and bacterial growth that can make people sick if they come into contact with polluted water or eat tainted fish or shellfish.

"Primarily, residents, organizations and business owners in town can help because it's something they can control. They're wasting money fertilizing in June. Look at the rain we had this morning; that fertilizer is gone. What we're trying to control here is nutrient pollution," Lindsay said.

When the ordinance first passed, the majority of residents were out of town and unaware of the council's decision. "There's a lot of people that will be leaving soon, although they have stayed later this year. I personally believe our residents and businesses are good stewards and want to be responsible. My message would simply be tell your property managers or landscapers to not use these fertilizers until October," Lindsay said.

Code Enforcement and Public Works Department employees will administer and enforce the new rules. Anyone with questions should call the town at 561-227-7080 or 561-838-5440.

Miami City Ballet to screen favorite works online

By Ian Sjöstrom
Daily News Staff Writer

There are some silver linings to the coronavirus shutdown. Miami City Ballet's new Friday Night Spotlights series is one.

Those who might have seen the featured ballets — which are some of the company's most popular works — on stage will have the chance to enjoy them again online.

The 8 p.m. series on the company's Facebook page opens Friday with a performance of George Balanchine's and Jerome Robbins' "Firebird." Miami City Ballet unveiled its new production of the Russian fairy tale-inspired ballet in February. The ballet had never been seen outside of New York City since its premiere in 1949.

Viewers tuning into Facebook will hear commentary by Nathalia Arja,

who danced the title character, and principal dancer Rainer Krensetter. To see the performance only, go to miamicityballet.org/makingfirebird. (The hub goes live at 8 p.m. on Friday.)

The hub also will feature behind-the-scenes videos with designers Anya Klepikov, Wendall Harrington and James Ingalls. The performance will be available on the website for 30 days.

The company hopes to make all the series' ballets available on the website for 30 days, but that's still being negotiated.

The rest of the series will feature:

* June 12 - "Heatscape": Miami City Ballet commissioned "Heatscape" from Justin Peck in 2015, when he was emerging as one of ballet's hottest young choreographers. Since then, Peck, who is New York City Ballet's resident choreographer, has added a Tony Award to his glittering resume for his work on the 2018 revival of "Carousel."

* June 26 - "Nine Sinatra Songs": Twyla Tharp's glamorous ballroom-inspired ballet is danced to the music of the famous crooner.

* July 12 - "Symphonic Dances": Choreographic powerhouse Alexei Ratmansky made this plotless ballet set to Sergei Rachmaninoff's score by the same name for Miami City Ballet.

The museum closed in mid-March in response to the pandemic.

The Norton hopes to reopen its first floor by mid-September. It won't reopen the upper floors until it has worked out the social distancing logistics.

The 37,000-square-foot sculpture garden is the first public garden designed by Pritzker Architecture Prize winner Lord Norman Foster, whose Foster + Partners steered the museum's recent revamp and expansion.

The garden is home to 17 works by artists such as Keith Haring, Ugo Rondinone, Antony Gormley, Fernan Leguer and others. It was designed to complement Foster's concept of the Norton as "a museum within a garden" that embraces its South Florida setting.

A new audio tour has been created, taking in all the sculptures as well as features of the 2019 expansion and the original 1941 Marion Sims Wyeth design.

There's no charge for admission, but the museum will accept donations to benefit local coronavirus relief efforts. Reservations, which are strongly recommended, can be made at norton.org.

The garden will be accessed through an entrance at 323 Cranesnest Way.

A number of safety measures will be in place, including:

* Advance timed ticketing. Time slots are on the hour, with the latest reservation at 4 p.m. Walk-ups will be admitted on a space available basis.

* Limiting admissions to ensure social distancing.

* Masks and facial coverings are required for staff and all visitors older than 2.

* One-way circulation and spaced seating.

* Six-foot social distancing, except for groups that arrive together. Groups cannot exceed six people.

Thu, Oct 8, 3:50 PM

Ann,
I hope your dad is okay.
Wishing him the best during this chapter.

Our structural engineer is Tom Youchak. Let's setup a call or meeting for the four of us: you, me, Jamison Brownie, and Tom.

You and Jamison can hear Tom's concerns, and we can hear Jamison's solutions. If easiest, you are all welcome to come by, and we can meet in our backyard, so we can all see the site. Can you please ask Jamison is there is a good time tomorrow we could all get together or speak on the phone. Free all day except 10:30-11a.

Saturday 4:51 PM

Would Monday work anytime
8a-1p or 4:30-6p?

Saturday 9:53 PM

Sorry my son had appendicitis and needed emergency surgery. Just getting out of recovery now and I'm checking texts etc. I'll need to reach out to them on Monday for availability

Read Saturday

I'm so sorry. I hope he is okay. Wishing him a speedy recovery! No problem, let's touch base on Monday.
